FIVE native sailors belonging to the steamer Lehua refused duty on Saturday as the vessel was preparing to leave. He inherited his wealth from his father who died some three years ago.
LE MOY, a Chinese woman, was arrested on Friday last on a complaint made by the parents of a native boy, who said that the woman had thrown a soda bottle at the boy, inflicting a wound on his head. On examination Mr. C. W. Ashford, who defended Moy, said that it was a custom with Young Hawaii to persecute helpless Chinese and he thought this was one of those cases. The woman was discharged.

OYSTER CULTURE.

Important Experiment Being Made by Hon. S. M. Damon.

Eighteen months ago Hon. S. M. Damon imported from San Francisco through Messrs. Lewis & Co. one hundred live oysters—at least all but three were alive on arrival—for planting in his fish ponds at Moanala. Thus far the experiment has borne promise of a successful issue.
The first evidence of the continued vitality of the oysters after planting in their strange beds was their adhesion to the rocks. They had been placed on coral slabs under water. To cover them with mud would be fatal. The oysters have grown in size. Young oysters like barnacles have attached themselves to the shells of the parents. Another promising evidence is that the oysters that were dead on arrival bear these young growths.
Mr. Damon procured a second lot of 50 oysters for planting in shallower water than the first ones. He is greatly pleased with the care taken by Messrs. Lewis & Co.'s agents on the Coast in packing the oysters. On the voyage they were fed with meal. Should these hardshell immigrants thrive to maturity, an important addition will have been made to domestic diversified industries.

IN MEMORIAM.

Supreme Court Session in Honor of the Memory of Judge McCully.

Before the term business for the day in the Supreme Court began before Judge Bickerton this morning, there was a session of the Court, to hear resolutions of the Bar in honor of the memory of the late Judge McCully. The entrance to the Courtroom was draped with black, as was that of the room upstairs.

Chief Justice Judd and Associate Justices Bickerton and Dole sat on the Bench, their countenances indicating profound sorrow. There was a full attendance of members of the Bar in the city, their names being Attorney-General W. A. Whiting, Deputy Attorney-General Charles Creighton, Jonathan Austin, A. S. Hartwell, W. R. Castle, Paul Neumann, W. O. Smith, Antonio Rosa, J. L. Kaulukou, F. M. Hatch, J. M. Davidson, W. C. Achi, Police Justice W. Foster, Police Justice Enoka Johnson of Ewa, A. P. Peterson, C. W. Ashford, V. V. Ashford, Cecil Brown, H. N. Castle, John Richardson, J. M. Monsarrat, J. A. Magoon, G. K. Wilder, W. C. Parke, W. F. Frear, S. K. Kane, W. L. Holokahiki, J. K. Kahookano, J. M. Kaneakua, D. L. Huntsman, J. K. Kaulia, Robt. Makalahupa.

His Excellency A. S. Cleghorn, Governor of Oahu, sat in front of the Bench to the right. Hon. C. B. Wilson, Marshal of the Kingdom, occupied the Court constable's box with Officer Fehlebehr. Hons. C. R. Bishop, H. M. Whitney, and W. F. Allen, His Excellency C. N. Spencer, Minister of the Interior, John A. Hassinger, Chief Clerk of the Interior, Capt. H. W. Mist, R. N., Chief Clerk H. Smith and Assistant Clerk F. Wendenberg, and W. L. Wilcox, Deputy Police Justice and Court interpreter, were also present as well as many private citizens and jurors for the term. J. W. Jones, Court Stenographer, took notes of all the proceedings.

Mr. Jona. Austin, spokesman for the Bar, presented the resolutions which appear below. He referred to the appropriateness of meeting to express sorrow for the death of a prominent man. If the one lamented was also a good man their regrets should be tempered by the feeling that their loss had been to him a blissful change. While Judge McCully's pleasant countenance would not beam on them in the flesh again, they should remember with pleasure and profit the example furnished by his many years of upright life. The members of the bar had committed to the speaker the sad duty of presenting their resolutions and asking that they be spread upon the records. Before doing so he wished to pay his tribute of respect and admiration for the fast friend, the pure judge and the good man. When the speaker arrived in Honolulu the last day of May, 1877, besides his relatives Judge and Mrs. McCully were the first to extend to him and his family hospitality and welcome. The friendship begun that day had remained unbroken and been drawn closer as the years went by, and in times of sorrow the sympathy of those true friends was extended with consolation. His admiration for the Judge's ability and integrity was the result of close observation, but he should confine his remarks to that expression of his sincere affection and his sense of personal loss.

RESOLUTIONS.

WHEREAS,—It has pleased God to take from us the Honorable Lawrence McCully, First Associate Justice of the Supreme Court and Vice Chancellor of the Kingdom, be it

Resolved,—That the members of this bar in expressing our sense of the loss which the Court and the community have suffered by the death of Judge McCully, do hereby record our appreciation of the sterling integrity, marked ability and untiring industry which distinguished him in the performance of his duties;

Resolved,—That in the death of Judge McCully the nation has lost a good citizen and an upright judge;

Resolved,—That we tender to the widow and family of the deceased our sincere sympathy in their affliction;

Resolved,—That these resolutions be presented at the opening of the Court on Tuesday the 12th instant, and motion made for their entry upon the record.

Mr. W. R. Castle eulogized the love of justice that marked the judicial course of Judge McCully. He had a large measure of that sense called common, but perhaps better described in his case as uncommon sense. It was a pleasure to practise before him. He was always ready to meet practitioners halfway. His cordiality was very great. They were all very glad to ascribe honor to him for his refinement, for his gentlemanly character. The speaker recalled with pleasure his experience of the late judge's friendship off the bench, and had heard papers presented by him before the Social Science Association of a high order of ability. Mr. Castle seconded the resolutions.

Mr. F. M. Hatch venerated the memory of Judge McCully as a judicial officer. He represented the highest type of a judge. His aim was a lofty one. Of a keen logical mind his attainments were withal scholarly. He presided at that Court with dignity and in a manner to inspire respect. His judicial impressiveness on the bench was marked—he would not say uncommon, for it was a feature of that Court. Whether in the ordinary business of the Court or in important constitutional questions he held the scales with absolute fairness. The speaker considered that in future years Hawaiians would venerate the memory of Lawrence McCully. He stood firmly by what he judged the constitutional rights of all parties, opposing personal prerogatives that were not founded in the fundamental law. His knowledge of the Hawaiian language and habits of thought peculiarly qualified him to preside in that Court. His life represented a long chapter in Hawaiian history. Might it be their lot to have their record written on so fair a page!

His Excellency W. A. Whiting referred to his intercourse with the lamented judge in traveling circuits. He had always found him one of the most pleasant men with whom he had ever traveled. A few years ago he traveled with him over roads exceedingly rough, when he remarked how patient he was over the hardships of the journey, always preserving an unruffled demeanor with his natural cordiality. He traveled with him to Kauai seven years ago last September, and would ever remember with pleasure that little trip along the Kipuea beach. The late Judge always enjoyed such trips, and was especially fond of traveling on Hawaii and Kauai. Judge McCully was not an old man. The speaker believed he did not want to die so soon, or until he felt he had performed his life service. But he had performed that service well and his memory would always be held in high esteem.

Hon. Paul Neumann remarked on Judge McCully's great kindness to strangers, instancing his own experience of that quality when he arrived in this country. The motto forbidding evil to be spoken of the dead was not applicable in his case, as it involved a plea of palliation. There was nothing in the career of Judge McCully requiring a defense. In his later life when he was afflicted with heart disease he always preserved fortitude to the extent of cheerfulness. His death was a loss to the Bench and to the Bar, because Judge McCully filled his position well. He discharged the duties of his office as an able jurist, as a Christian, as a man of culture, and as an upright judge.

Mr. J. L. Kaulukou said that Judge McCully started the first boarding school in Kona, where his work also as a horticulturist still remained in a thriving orange grove. The roof of the house he occupied there was still standing. Mr. Kaulukou knew of at least two of Mr. McCully's pupils in Kona who were a credit to his teachings. One of them was now a missionary in Micronesia, the other was doing well for himself in Kona. The lamented Judge would always be remembered by the Hawaiian people as a man who always had their interests at heart. He was always glad to greet even the humblest of them with friendliness. When the speaker was being examined for license to practice, Judge McCully playfully asked him if he could conduct a divorce suit. On being answered in the affirmative he expressed his willingness to grant the license.

Chief Justice Judd then feelingly uttered the sentiments of the Court:

REMARKS OF CHIEF JUSTICE JUDD.

BRETHREN,—

I shrink very much from the duty now upon me, because the companionship between me and our deceased brother, begun long ago and cemented by fifteen years of intimate association on the bench together, has made the tie between us so strong that its severing is now very painful. Judge McCully was one of the few who left kindred and friends and came to these then slightly known islands with the deliberate intention of making them his home. Landing here in 1854 a young man of 23 years, he found this country mourning its king Kamehameha III. who had granted its Magna Charta and established the government in its present form. Living through the reigns of four successive kings and holding office under all of them he witnessed the great political and economic changes that have taken place during the past forty years as Police Justice, Interpreter, Clerk of the Supreme Court, Boundary Commissioner, Deputy Attorney-General and Justice of the Supreme Court he knew the land of his adoption intimately and greatly to the advantage of the public service. As an educated man, with high sentiments and pure character, a well stored mind, cultivated by reading and foreign travel, he adorned the bench. Two important characteristics of Judge McCully I wish to emphasize. First, his prudent and simple method of life, not savoring of either extravagance or parsimony, but that habit that enabled him, on salaries that would be scorned in these days, to save some thing which, by wise investment, is now comforting to those dependent upon him. Secondly, his inherent honesty of character. He loved the truth. Policy had no place in his thoughts and never swayed him in his decisions. Sometimes a consideration of policy would have been to his advantage, but he never thought of that, but, scorning hypocrisy, free comments on what he thought was wrong, may have offended some. But he never cherished resentment and had the true forgiving spirit. Especially was this noticed in the last months of his physical weakness. In social life he shone, for his conversation was always instructive, his words fluent and select. He associated only with the best and purest spirits—nothing low or degrading met with response in him.

As a judge his work was good. His written opinions are characterized by thoroughness of treatment and sound sense. He followed the numerous legislative amendments to our statutes with such fidelity that he was an authority on these subjects. Insincere eulogy is distasteful, but I say, with all candor, that Judge McCully's character as a Christian gentleman, as a scholar, as a judge, stands before us unimpeached. I need say no more.
"Integer vitae, scelerisque purus Non egit mavis, gravior sagittis."
We thank you, brethren, for the kind and truthful sentiments expressed by your resolutions.
Let them be entered on the records of this Court.
Honolulu, April 12, 1892.

"I have just recovered from a second attack of the grip this year," says Mr. Jas. O. Jones, publisher of the Leader, Mexico, Texas. "In the latter case I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and I think with considerable success, only being in bed a little over two days, against ten days for the first attack. The second attack I am satisfied would have been equally as bad as the first but for the use of this remedy, as I had to go to bed in about six hours after being 'struck' with it, while in the first case I was able to attend to business about two days before getting 'down.' 50 cent bottles for sale by all dealers.
